

Trace Wines are from northern California. Our winery is 90 minutes north of Napa in Nice (Lake County) and our vineyards are located just 50 miles east of San Francisco in a new AVA, Tracy Hills (recorded in Dec. 2006). We grow all of our own fruit and produce all of our own wine...in other words, we are not negociants.

Since we own the vineyards and the winery, we control everything from vine to bottle, creating a handcrafted product at an amazing price point. Our wines are made in a boutique style in small lot production. Our largest fermentation tank is only 6,300 gallons and we taste all of our lots and blend them to create our different vintages with a focus on balanced, approachable wines true to their varietal character, letting the fruit do all the talking.

Our Mount Oso Vineyard in Tracy Hills is approximately 330 acres of six different varietals:

195 acres Cabernet Sauvignon	88 acres Syrah/Shiraz
10 acres Merlot	15 acres Zinfandel
10 acres Pinot Grigio	12 acres Chardonnay

The Mount Oso region has the same rainfall as the Mojave Desert and the adjacent foothills steer the storms around the vineyard. The water table is 110 feet deep allowing our vineyard manager to control the amount of water on the vines, stressing them to create small tight berries with amazing flavor.
